Integrated products and services that enable our market leadership in the field of advanced pharma solutions

Our business model clearly distinguishes the role that we play between the manufacturers of raw materials and the pharmaceutical companies that deliver the end products to the consumers out in the market. The most critical aspect of our business model is market intelligence wherein our research and development team plays a significant role. Needless to say, liaisons in the global market that entail sourcing of raw materials like APIs is something that we have grown to be proficient in. Custom clearances and logistics solutions for seamless transactions of products/services across the globe need critical interventions which NEWEDGE Overseas has mastered. Though we do not conduct regulatory audits but to enable deals with audited firms and those who follow the regulatory norms is our responsibility. In-out licensing is another service in which we have excelled in so as to enable best product/ service delivery out to the consumers. We at NEWEDGE Overseas have over a period of time excelled in the same with a stamp of quality assurance.

Our industry works on predictive analytics, and we at NEWEDGE Overseas are extremely resilient with the supply-chain management, as we can understand the demand and supply trends very well. And as we sail through in the market, over a period of time, catering to all kinds of advanced pharma solutions has become our core competency.

In the pursuit of continuous improvement, we provide focussed after-sales support so as to understand how the product and services are received in the market. The outcome of our integrated business model is that we not only have excelled as an organization but have also become market leaders in the field of advanced pharma solutions.
