Our Profile

Rontis, a Switzerland based multinational specialty healthcare corporation, was established in 1986 by a group of leading professionals with lengthy experience in the wider healthcare sector and a vision to provide the most innovative & trustworthy solutions in the market, aiming to become an international leader in the global healthcare industry.

At its initial steps, the company collaborated closely with renowned manufacturers of the international medical device industry in order to distribute their products and introduce their technologies in markets that lacked the appropriate know-how, efficient logistics & supply chain.

In the years that followed, Rontis made the strategic decision to expand its operations from distribution to in-house production of medical devices. Along these lines it invested heavily in two manufacturing plants and managed within a short time frame to build a brand name associated to innovation and credibility.

The entrance in the Infant Nutrition & Consumer Healthcare markets was another milestone in the company's expansion of activities, which set the stage for a subsequent transition from distribution to production of specialty infant & baby nutrition and dermatological products.

Rontis Corporation made recently another key decision to expand its production activities in the pharmaceutical sector and therefore invested in the establishment of a separate state-of-the-art manufacturing plant combined with additional investment in establishing a separate in-house R&D lab focused on the developments of specialty pharmaceutical products.
